600 UFO kidnap victims found in Amazon jungle

TOTALLY DISORIENTED: Some alien kidnap victims had no idea where they were — or how they wound up in the jungle. Dr. Carlos de Melo, the man who made the amazing discovery, said they come from every country in the world. "One had been missing since 1926," said Dr. de Melo.

By HENRY WEBER

A Brazilian researcher claims to have found 600 UFO kidnap victims in the Amazon jungle.

Dr. Carlos de Melo says the victims come from virtually every country in the world and range in age from 6 to 85.

They appear to be in good health, he added, although several bear scars of surgical experiments — most of which were conducted on the brain.

"This is the scientific discovery of the century," Dr. de Melo told reporters. "These poor people have experienced a close encounter of the worst kind.

"They were abducted by extraterrestrials. One has been missing since 1926 — he has not seen his wife and children in 62 years."

Brazilian military officials refused to comment on the researcher's claims, although press reports indicate that the victims are currently being debriefed at a military installation in Belo Horizon.

American intelligence agencies are rumored to be involved in the operation, but sources will only confirm that "a small contingent of specially-trained officers have been sent" to Brazil.

They were abducted and enslaved!

Dr. de Melo says he found the kidnap victims massed in a jungle clearing 75 miles north of Rosario Oeste, near Brazil's border with Bolivia, on June 9.

He initially thought that he had stumbled on a religious cult.

"There were men, women and children, some old, some young, huddled together in the jungle," said the expert.

"A few of them were totally disoriented, having no idea where they had been or why they were in the jungle. Others were fully aware of their circumstances. They were cautious at first, but eventually asked for government assistance to get back to their respective homes."

Dr. de Melo alerted government officials, who directed the army to helicopter the victims back to civilization. It is not yet known why they were released by the aliens. But the motive for their being kidnapped in the first place seems clear.

'These poor people had a close encounter of the worst kind,' says stunned doctor

According to Dr. de Melo, the victims were taken to a distant planet where they were used in medical experiments, as slave labor and displays in zoos.

Several allegedly told the expert they worked as interpreters at listening posts that monitored radio signals from Earth.

Dr. de Melo said he repeatedly questioned the victims about the extraterrestrials themselves but was told that any discussion of them "would result in death."

Swiss UFO researcher Gerald Bischof said the 600 kidnap victims are the first to be returned to Earth.

"This is definitely a milestone," he told reporters, "but we still have a crisis.

"Tens of thousand of people are abducted by aliens each year. If we begin serious study of these kidnap victims there's no telling what we can learn about the aliens and their civilization.

"By those standards, these 600 are a drop in the bucket. Many, many more are missing still."

Poachers eating their prey — pigeons!

Animal lovers in New York City are in a stew because poachers have been stealing pigeons and squirrels out of public parks — and eating them!

The situation is so bad that Parks Commissioner Henry Stern has called the park's gray squirrels and friendly pigeons.

"They belong to the park and no one can take them for any purpose, either for their pelts or for their meat," Stern said.

Woman smuggler sentenced to death by firing squad

MACHINE GUN JUSTICE FOR DRUG-DEALING MOM!

By PETE COOKE

An Australian mother convicted on a drug charge has been sentenced to die before a machine gun-toting firing squad!

Nola Blake Hudson, 37, staggered and nearly collapsed when she left the courtroom in Bangkok, Thailand, but told reporters as she was led back to her cell she accepts her grim fate.

"They're going to kill me," she said. "I knew it was coming. I shall not appeal."

At the same hearing her husband, Paul, was sentenced to life in prison after confessing to his part in the drug smuggling scheme, but a Bangkok heroin dealer was sentenced to die by machine gun fire with Mrs. Hudson.

Authorities said the Hudsons were small-time drug peddlers in Sydney, Australia, and traveled to Bangkok to buy nine pounds of heroin.

They were arrested after paying the manager of a Bangkok massage parlor $50,000 for the drugs. But Hudson told police in his confession that he was the one who bought the heroin and his wife knew nothing about it.

"She never knew it was in the bags I was carrying," Hudson said. "She never looked in them. She was just window-shopping."

Mrs. Hudson denied any part in the drug deal, but police said she hid the heroin in her baby's stroller.

She tried to hide heroin in baby's stroller, say cops

The couple's 14-month-old son, Todd, is now living with Mrs. Hudson's mother in Sydney.

The judge in the case said he decided to impose the death penalty because evidence in the case convinced him Mrs. Hudson played a significant role in the smuggling scheme.

Investigators testified that Mrs. Hudson was seen meeting with massage parlor manager Supoj Kittidejdamkerng in a coffee shop several times, working out details of the transaction with a pocket calculator.

Mrs. Hudson and Kittidejdamkerng are the first to be sentenced to die under Thailand's tough anti-drug law in about 10 years.

MOM Nola Blake Hudson has been sentenced to die for smuggling heroin.

HUSBAND Paul Hudson, left, and Supoj Kittidejdamkerng were also convicted of drug trafficking.

Ouch! Heart patients say first aid hurts

A very common lifesaving technique for heart attack victims may be so painful that the poor patient would rather die then undergo the treatment!

According to an editorial by Dr. Peter R. Kowey in the American Journal of Cardiolo-cal cardioversion sends such massive jolts of electricity to the chest that patients say it feels like they're being electrocuted.

Heart attack victims receive skin burns and experience severe muscle cramps in the chest, the Medical College of Pennsylvania doctor said.

"If it happens again, just let me die," Dr. Kowey wrote.

Dr. Kowey pointed out that the procedure is intended for use while the patient is unconscious or anesthetized, but emergency workers are forgetting to spare the patient in their haste to restore normal

Cops corral modern-day Bonnie & Clyde

TEEN TERRORS? Police say Brian Lee Hill, 16, left, and his partner Shannon Skipper, 18, went on a wild-and-woolly, two-week crime spree that covered thousands of miles.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Two gun-toting teens trying to be like notorious Bonnie and Clyde were nabbed by cops after they allegedly went on a cross-country crime spree of robberies and kidnappings.

"They sure had a hell-raising two weeks," said Princeton, Ill., police detective Gary Swanson after Shannon Skipper, 18, and Brian Lee Hill, 16, were returned there from Valparaiso, Ind.

Swanson said the young suspects admitted to one victim that they "were inspired" by a movie about Bonnie and Clyde, infamous crooks of the '30s who blazed a trail of crime across America until they were ambushed and shot to death by lawmen. Shannon even drew a picture of them in her diary, Swanson said.

"They said they were married and were out having fun like Bonnie and Clyde," said kidnap victim Mike Tumbleson. "The woman said she had only two years to live and the guy said he wanted to go down shooting."

But there was no gunfire when cops surprised the two teens as they tried to buy an attack dog at a pound in Valparaiso.

They were jailed on $250,000 bond each in Princeton, charged with robbing and kidnapping Tumbleson.

Their brief crime career began May 26 in Socastee, S.C., when Shannon stole her dad's pickup and 12-gauge shotgun and drove to Cherry Grove, S.C., said cops.

They are accused of robbing a convenience store there of $200 to $1,000. Pregnant clerk Connie Bryant was abducted and released a few miles down the road. She was given change for a phone call. Police said Shannon and Brian have been identified as the young desperados who robbed a gas station in Tucumcari, N. Mex., three days later and kidnapped clerk Jeff Gonzalez, 25.

Gonzalez was handcuffed to a bed in a motel for a day as the suspects slept and showered. He was released the next day.

Shannon and Brian are accused of robbing a gas station of $477 in Barstow, Calif., on June 1. Clerk Stanley Hunter was abducted, but escaped from a gas station rest room in Van Nuys, 100 miles away.

Tumbleson was working the night shift at a Shell station in Princeton when Shannon and Brian walked in about 3:30 a.m., said cops. Shannon held the shotgun on the clerk as Brian scooped more than $700 from the cash drawer and stole hundreds of dollars in lottery tickets, said cops.

Terrified Tumbleson was handcuffed and loaded into the pickup for a ride to Michigan City, Ind. He was chained to a tree and given a screwdriver so he could free himself after they left, according to police.

About the time Tumbleson freed himself and called cops, Shannon and Brian were asking a man in Valparaiso where they could get a mean dog. He told them to go to the animal shelter. Deputies staked out the shelter and said the terrible teens walked right into their trap — just like the real Bonnie and Clyde.

CREEPS BEWARE!

New phone gets tough on obscene callers

The Japanese have developed an astonishing new telephone that can stop obscene callers dead in their tracks.

Sony Corp.'s Revenge Phone can attack unwanted callers in three ways. One key activates a gruff male voice that shouts: "What do you want, pervert?"

A second key blasts the offender with 120 decibels of sound, enough to cause ear damage. And a third records the caller's message and plays it back to him!

The phone is currently sold in Japan only. But it should Coast to coast — more sightings of The King!

READERS SPOT ELVIS!

FANS who've seen Elvis recently say he's now ready to step back into the limelight.

The King definitely lives — NEWS readers say — and may be on the verge of reclaiming the lofty throne he yielded nearly 11 years ago when he faked his own death!

In a series of spectacular sightings that dot the country from the rolling hills of New England to the shimmering shores of the Pacific, Elvis Presley in recent months has repeatedly revealed himself to scores of lucky fans.

By JOHN BLACKBURN

Now 53, the rock-'n'-roll superstar even gave an impromptu performance of one of his hit songs for a college audience at a weekend party in Blacksburg, Va.

"At first I thought he was just a professor looking for a good time," a young musician told The NEWS.

"But then I took a good look at him and my heart stopped. I knew it was Elvis, even though his hair was thinner and he was wearing a beard.

"He stood by himself for the longest while, just listening to the music. Suddenly, though, when we started playing 'Blue Suede Shoes,' he grabbed the microphone and started to sing. It was astonishing. Everyone stopped dancing.

"When the song was over, the crowd stood silent and motionless as The King casually strolled off and left the party. Then the spell was broken and I rushed after Elvis, but he had disappeared. I'd give anything to hear that man sing again, though. It was probably the greatest night of my life."

The King also has been spotted enjoying an auto race in Minnesota, fishing a rushing stream in upstate New York, strolling a rock-strewn beach in Maine, eating lunch at an out-of-the-way restaurant in the wine country of California, browsing through books at a little shop in the ping at a posh Texas department store.

In an incredible encounter outside a Las Vegas hotel where a musical tribute to the rock idol was the featured attraction, Elvis confessed to a dedicated fan he had indeed staged his tragic death, but was now ready to step back into the limelight.

"We had both just come out of the hotel after viewing the tribute," the astounded fan told The NEWS.

"But I recognized him immediately — and when I confronted him, he smiled shyly and admitted he was Elvis.

"He told me he faked dying because fame had become too heavy a burden to bear. He had no life of his own, he said. He felt that he was always on display — like he was nothing more than a goldfish in a glass bowl.

"He said that after fading from public view he started a new life — a quiet life away from all the glitz and glamor of show biz — in a small town in Michigan.

"Recently, though, he told me, he decided to come out of seclusion and started traveling around the country. And he doesn't seem to mind if people recognize him — because he's considering resuming his career. He said he felt he had matured and would be better able now to handle the lack of privacy that comes

Hardworking police dog dies — from stress!

A hardworking police dog died of an ulcer that may have been caused by stress, says a veterinarian.

The pooch, Benno, was a 5-year-old rookie police dog that helped make 43 felony arrests in a matter of a few months, cops said.

Officer Aubrey Lewis, Benno's partner during his brief career, said the mutt was too tough for his own good.

sick because that meant he wouldn't be able to work," said Lewis.

Lewis said he first knew something was wrong with Benno when the dog failed to respond as usual when he unlocked his safety belt in their patrol car.

The Jacksonville, Fla., officer took Benno to the veterinarian where he died.

The doctor said the dog died of an

Don't let the green-eyed monster wreck your romance — take this . . .

Jealousy test!

By JOE BERGER

Does the green-eyed monster have a hold on you? Is he skulking around in your heart, waiting to turn a beautiful romance into a beastly battle of the sexes?

Jealousy has been known to drive lovers to madness — even resulting in cold-blooded murder.

To find out just how jealous you are, take this test compiled by experts at The Sun newspaper in London. Chalk up one point for every question you're forced to answer Yes. Have you ever:

- Rummaged through the dishwasher for extra wine glasses or other signs your partner has cheated on you?
- Dug into wastebaskets or garbage cans for telltale cigarette or cigar butts?
- Checked the records left on the stereo or the tape left in the cassette player to see if your sweetie's been playing romantic music when you're not around?
- Secretly played back the messages on your lover's telephone answering machine?
- Read every scrap of paper in the wastebasket?
- Searched through your mate's diary, letters, notebooks or pockets?
- Phoned a number you found scribbled on a scrap of paper or a book of matches?
- Scoured the bedroom for signs of infidelity, like earrings or cuff links by the bed, ruffled bedclothes or suspicious marks on pillows?
- Looked for some other woman's makeup or another guy's shaving gear in the bathroom?
- Telephoned your honey at unusual or unexpected times just to check up on them?
- Noted the car mileage to see if your loverboy or gal is making any unexplained side trips?
- Cleaned out the car looking for signs that your sweetheart has strayed?
- Staked out a boyfriend or girlfriend's house at night to see what time they got home and who was with them — or gotten up early to see who's leaving?
- Gone through a paramour's credit card receipts or check stubs looking for unexplained purchases like flowers, theater tickets or fancy meals?
- Secretly listened to your partner's phone calls on an extension?

HOW YOU STACK UP

0-3 Points: It doesn't hurt to be a little curious about what your partner's up to. Most of us are.

4-8: Time to think about why you're behaving the way you are. It's only making you unhappy and you won't be able to hide your jealousy much longer.

9-15: The green-eyed monster has a firm grip on you. If you don't change, you're almost certain to drive your lover away — and you'll have no one to blame but yourself.

Fisherman lynched!

A man fishing from a riverbank narrowly escaped death when two gunmen robbed him and then tried to lynch him.

Authorities in Uniontown, Pa., said Douglas Laney, 29, was treated for a severe back sprain after the incident.

Laney told police he was fishing in the afternoon when two men armed with revolvers demanded his wallet.

The victim said after taking his money, the robbers threw a rope over a tree limb and hanged him.

The men fled as he dangled from the end of the rope. Laney managed to pull himself up the rope to safety.

Dark-skinned man bleached pale by bizarre disease

Oh my God — I've turned white!

By JOE BERGER

Actor Jaron Yaltan was a colored man for the first 60 years of his life — until a rare disease turned his skin a pasty white!

The breathtaking transformation took just six mind-boggling days — but it changed Jaron and those around him forever.

"It really is a crazy thing," the shaken actor-dancer told reporters in London, England.

"Nobody can even imagine what it's like to be black all your life and then to look in the mirror and see this white face staring back at you.

"But it's given me a chance to view things from both sides of the fence, and some of what I've learned about my own people is not very pretty."

Easygoing Jaron, 66 — who's shared the silver screen with Ben Kingsley, Dirk Bogarde and a host of other stars — is the victim of a heart-breaking ailment called vitiligo, which robs the skin of its pigmentation.

One day when Jaron was 60, the color started disappearing from his face in giant splotches. And in less than a week, his entire body was as white as a Buffalo, N.Y., office worker in winter.

"I got a real shock when I began going through life as a black man on the inside and a white man on the outside," said the Johnny-come-lately paleface.

"The attitude of the black people toward me as a white is far worse than the attitude of the white people ever was when I was black."

Shortly after his bizarre color change, Jaron informed a black sales clerk that she'd given him the wrong change. The lady blew up, raging at him that he was accusing her of cheating.

"This sort of thing never happened when I was black, whether the clerk was black or white," he says. "I was just a customer then. Today I am a white.

"Of course, I know what the black girl was thinking: 'Ah, here's a white man calling me a cheat.'

"The resentment is terrible."

During these past six years, Jaron has suffered through countless confrontations like that one. But, in Britain at least, blacks have no cause to complain about their treatment at the hands of the white majority, he insists.

N.Y. cabbies can't hack it

Two out of three New York City cabbies are lousy drivers who routinely run red lights and don't even know their way around town, according to a new study.

The scathing report by the city's Taxi and Limousine Commission blamed much of the problem on the increasing number of part-time cab drivers, many of whom can't speak English.

Scientists admit that planetary positions on our birthdate influences our lives, our behavior and the right - and wrong - decisions we make. Now, more and more people recognize that a particular number will also influence our lives. Some assert that this number is the visible sign - much like a mystical presence - through which the infinite intelligence helps us...proving that we are not totally on our own.

If you have read, as I have, statements made by big time winners (over $1,000,000), then you know they very often admit to having been helped by being dictated all or some of the numbers. They will acknowledge this fact openly though some may not believe them.

The more specialized media will also prove to you that an incredible amount of people have won hundreds and thousands they never could have hoped to win - thanks to their personal lucky number. They often talk and write about it.

Help yourself and heaven will help you

Despair no more

It is a fact that luck strikes most often when it is least expected. Reading this message is the first step. Luck is about to come your way. Perhaps you were to read this message.

Looking back on all the important moments of your life, you might have noticed that a certain number - different from other people's numbers - reoccurs over and over again. Those who understand the message and who recognize their Golden Number have been known to win thousands at the races, lotto or lotteries.

I wish to reach those of you who - for various reasons - have not grasped this message.

WOLF PARENTS love their children just as much as human moms and pops do, says teen raised in the wild.

After 15 years in the wilderness teen struggles to become human

WOLF BOY SPEAKS

By IRWIN FISHER

A teenage boy has spoken for the first time about his 15 years in the wilderness being raised by wolves!

"My parents were wolves," the 16-year-old, identified only as Dieter, told medical reporters in Mannheim, West Germany.

"They raised me from infancy. They cared for me when I was sick. They taught me to hunt. But I am a human now." The young man's mind-boggling story came to light when he suffered a crippling leg injury in Germany's forbidding Black Forest last July.

Found by a wilderness group and brought back to civilization, he was examined by doctors who concluded that he had been abandoned by his natural parents at birth and raised by wolves in the forest.

Dr. Horst Schutt, the psychiatrist who supervised Dieter's rehabilitation, said the boy "was more animal than human when he arrived at the clinic."

"Dieter was wary of humans and quite vicious," he continued. "He fed on raw meat and lapped water from a bowl. He tried to communicate with barks and growls."

In spite of Dieter's retarded development, Dr. Schutt and his staff believed that the boy could learn to behave normally if given the chance.

Now, after a year of intensive therapy, the boy speaks reasonably fluent German and abides by most social conventions.

Dr. Schutt actually hailed the young man's address to reporters in Mannheim "as proof that he has overcome his wolfish upbringing."

The boy himself acknowledged that he has many years of intense training to go before he can call himself "totally human."

But he is looking forward to the challenge, especially now that Dr. Schutt has filed papers to legally adopt him. "I would like to meet my human parents and see my wolf parents again," said the boy. "But I know that is not possible because they are my old life and all that is over now.

"Dr. Schutt has given me a new life to begin."

He still loves animal parents that raised him!

PINT-SIZE GANGSTERS RULE AFRICAN UNDERWORLD!

Pistol-packin' Pygmies are Mafia bigshots

By RAGAN DUNN

Africa's powerful new Pygmy Mafia is threatening the internal stability of at least three countries under the supervision of crime boss Gilbert "Little Mbango" Ducry.

Police say the 42-year-old kingpin stands only 4 feet, 6 inches tall — but inch for inch, he's one of the smartest and deadliest criminals around.

"We call him 'Mr. Big' with good reason," Police Maj. Albert Degois told reporters in Dakar, Senegal, formerly French West Africa.

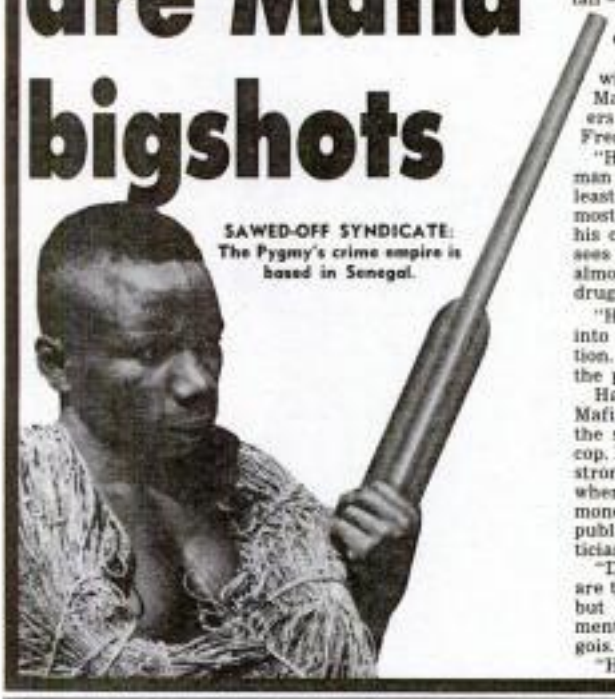
"He's a brilliant organization man and has a syndicate of at least 150 career criminals — most of them Pygmies — under his control. He personally oversees the sale and distribution of almost 90 percent of Africa's drugs.

"His mafiosi are also heavily into racketeering and prostitution. They've killed 23 men in the past year alone."

Hardest hit by the Pygmy Mafia has been Senegal, where the syndicate is based, said the cop. Ducry and his men also have strongholds in Ghana and Gabon, where they have used their money and power to win high public office for handpicked politicians, he said.

"Ducry's criminal enterprises are the foundation of his empire but certainly aren't the fulfillment of his dreams," said Lt. Degois.

"He has worlds to conquer. And he's starting in Senegal, Ghana and Gabon."



SAWED-OFF SYNDICATE: The Pygmy's crime empire is based in Senegal.

RECRUITS: The Pygmy kingpin turns innocent jungle tribesmen like these into ruthless gangsters.

Ducry's criminal enterprises and power belie the wretchedness of his past.

According to Lt. Degois, Ducry was born into abject poverty in the Congo.

But with the help of missionaries, he escaped to Senegal and got the equivalent of a high school education in Dakar.

By 1980, at the age of 34, he had already made a fortune off his interests in pornography and prostitution.

He used his ill-gotten wealth to recruit Pygmy henchmen from the Congo. And the Pygmy Mafia was born. The ferocity of the little criminals has made them feared throughout Africa. Although easily recognized by their short stature, the Pygmy killers carry Uzi machine guns, blowguns and poison darts as equilizers.

According to Lt. Degois, they have been known to maim or kill at the slightest provocation.

The cop is currently helping to organize a multi-national task force to combat the syndicate. But he fears the effort is too little too late — and admits that Ducry and his Mafia can't be stopped.

Fear walks streets of tiny Texas town

Hair-trigger tempers are flaring in a tense Texas town where a housewife was brutally gang-raped by 10 men — and the suspects have been freed on bail until their trial.

By SCOTT JACKSON

"Relatives of the victim exchanged gunfire the other night with people in a passing car," said prosecutor Rudy Gutierrez in San Diego, Tex.

"No one was injured in the shooting, but there's a lot of bad blood between feuding families here. What happened to that young woman could make it worse."

The 19-year-old victim was forced into a car by four men as she walked home to her husband and two children.

"She was taken to a lonely country road outside of town and assaulted by her abductors," said Gutierrez. "Six men who were attending a nearby cock fight saw what was happening and took their turn with her."

The terrified woman begged to be released, but her tormentors drove to another location and assaulted her repeatedly, said Gutierrez.

She was dumped off near her home after the horrifying, four-hour ordeal and her husband alerted sheriff's deputies.

"They all live in or around San Diego. She knew 'em."

All 10 have been charged with sexual assault and six of the men also face kidnapping charges. Cops have moved the victim, her children and husband to a secret location until the trial.

"It's for her safety and best for them after what she's been through," said sheriff's investigator Esrain Perez.

One friend of the victim said the tiny cattle town of 4,000 isn't big enough for the suspects and decent law-abiding folks. Before they were arrested, Richard Yaeger said, "They have to get out of San Diego. They'll never be able to come back here."

But the 10 suspects are back

CROCODILE DUNDEE'S ACTING LIKE AN OLD FOOL

Crocodile Dundee superstar Paul Hogan was savaged in the press by an outraged woman columnist who called him a "bashed up old handbag" and a "fool" for dumping his wife and taking up with his sexy, blonde costar.

Columnist Jean Rook, known as the "First Lady" of the British press, unleashed a vicious attack on the Crocman, saying his young girlfriend could only be after one thing — money — and he was stupid for leaving his faithful wife.

And she labeled him a "fool" for running after a gal young enough to be his daughter.

The furious female reporter described slinky Linda, 29, as: ". . . the definitive dumb blonde bimbette."

Meanwhile, the Crocman struck back at the British press for hounding his every move and sticking their noses in his private life.

Pistol packin' Dolly gives brazen lout big surprise

Sugar-sweet country songbird Dolly Parton turned into a plucky pistol-packin' mama when a rude lout had the nerve to try and pick her up like a common tramp in New York's dangerous Central Park.

The now slender star says the shocking incident happened while she and a gal pal were out for a stroll and this pesky oaf tried to "proposition" her.

"I was terrified," confesses Dolly. "The guy thought we were hookers. I stuck my hand in my bag, pulled out my gun, pointed it at him and told him if he didn't take a hike, I'd turn him into a soprano. He got the message after that."

Plucky Dolly blames her new thin, shapely self for attracting sicko pests. Strangely, many people believe her TV show flopped because her many fans didn't like her slender figure.

"It's ironic, more weirdos come on to me now I'm skinny than ever they did when I had a big bottom and bust," she sighs.

Dolly reportedly went through a special three-week course in Tinseltown to learn how to use a pistol. — London People.

Welfare gal blows $100G lottery bonanza & is dead broke

Queen for a day!

Welfare mom Wendy Pirrie won a whopping $100,000 cash in the lottery and thought her troubles were over — till she blew it all on fancy wheels, far-flung vacations and fun-filled nights at the bingo parlor.

Now the luckless lady says she's got more problems than ever before — and she blames the Canadian lottery folks for forking over all her winning at once.

By JOE BERGER

"I'm not sure the lottery people know what they're doing," the Winnipeg woman told reporters. "They should give the money a little at a time like they do in the United States so it doesn't slip through your fingers so fast.

"It doesn't take as long to spend $100,000 as some people think."

The hapless housewife was living on welfare and was down to her last $50 when she hit the jackpot late last year.

Within two days, she said, she'd shelled out $56,000 for furniture, a new car, a pickup truck and a boat.

"You get so excited when you first get your hands on the money that you want to buy all the things you could never afford before," said poorer-but-wiser Wendy, 43.

"They should just give you $1,000 of your money and hold on to the rest."

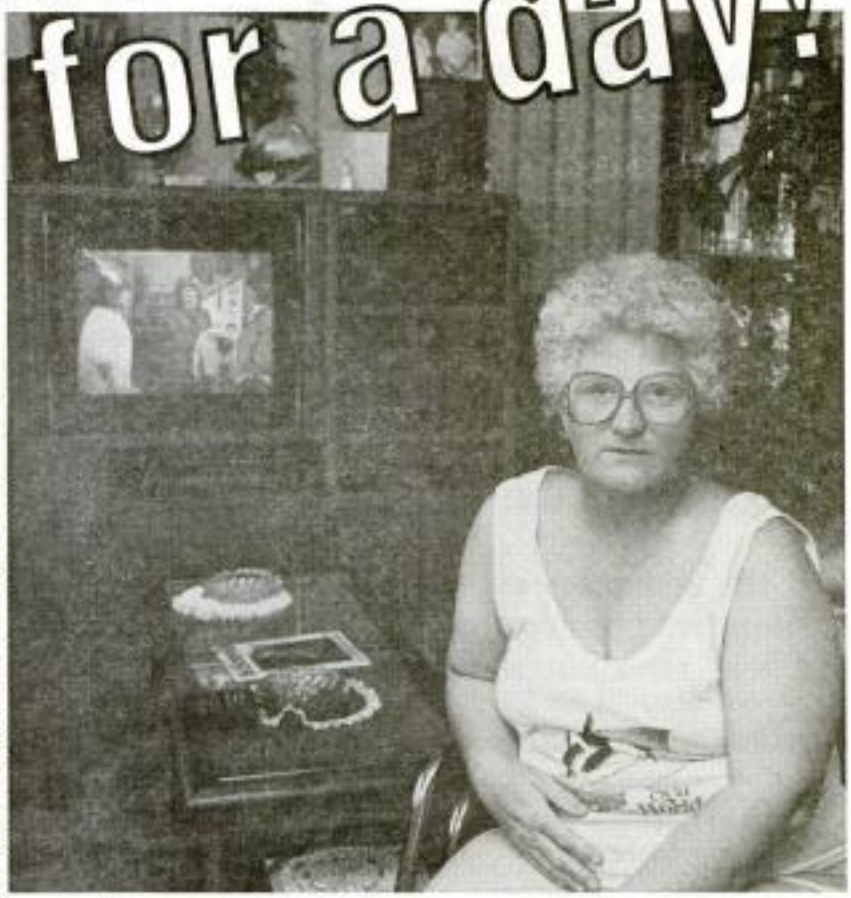
Once she'd bought the gaudy goodies she wanted, the elated lady headed off for vacations in Florida, Las Vegas and Reno — dropping a wad at the gaming tables along the way.

And now, after countless nights of bingo in her hometown, Wendy has blown the rest of the loot and taken up baby-sitting to pay the rent. She says she may have to go back on welfare.

"But the worst part is the trouble and the tension all that money causes in your life," said the morose mother of three. "My boyfriend and I started battling all the time as soon as I got the money.

"I don't think I ever want to win it again. I just wish they hadn't handed it to me all at once like that and said go to it."

But lottery boss Len Gzebb says Wendy has nobody to blame but herself. "If she was so keen on getting monthly payments, she could have taken her winnings to a bank and purchased annuities," Gzebb said.



EASY COME, EASY GO Wendy Pirrie sits in her newly furnished living room.

Attack victim's wilderness ordeal!

COPS arrested and charged Shawn Clawson.

By DICK DONOVAN

A woman staggered for 24 agonizing hours over rugged Montana terrain — after she had been stabbed 15 times, beaten on the head with a rock, raped and left for dead!

And after she was found she gave cops a description of her attacker that was so detailed that it landed the savage beast behind bars just two days later.

"She is one courageous lady," Lewis and Clark County Sheriff Chuck O'Reilly told The NEWS. "She went through a terror I can't even imagine going through.

"She's got more heart than any 10 people I know. She survived on her will to live . . . her refusal to just lie down and die."

Cops said the woman not identified by name was abducted from her Helena home by 24-year-old prison parolee Shawn D. Clawson.

The Helena man is now held on $250,000 bond on charges of attempted murder, sexual assault and intimidation.

A friend said she was talking with the victim on the phone at about 1:30 in the morning when she heard her cry out, "Oh no! Oh no!"

The friend reported hearing sounds of a scuffle, and when cops arrived at the woman's home, she was gone.

The woman was found on a country road northeast of Helena by a motorist who drove her to a hospital.

Despite her terrible condition, she gave detectives a detailed description of her abductor, O'Reilly said.

"Her description was remarkable," he added. "She was trying so hard to help us in the midst of all that pain, sedation and terror."

An employee at an auto parts store where Clawson worked heard the assailant's description on the radio and noted how closely it fit Clawson. He told his boss, who passed it on to the cops.

Clawson, who had left work suddenly that day, was captured a few minutes later as he was driving out of the city with his 17-year-old girlfriend.

Clawson had been paroled in March from the Montana State Penitentiary where he served part of a 10-year sentence for burglary, sexual assault and intimidation.

O'Reilly said the woman has undergone surgery and appears to be recovering.

"I've got to hand it to her," he said, "that woman really has . . . courage."

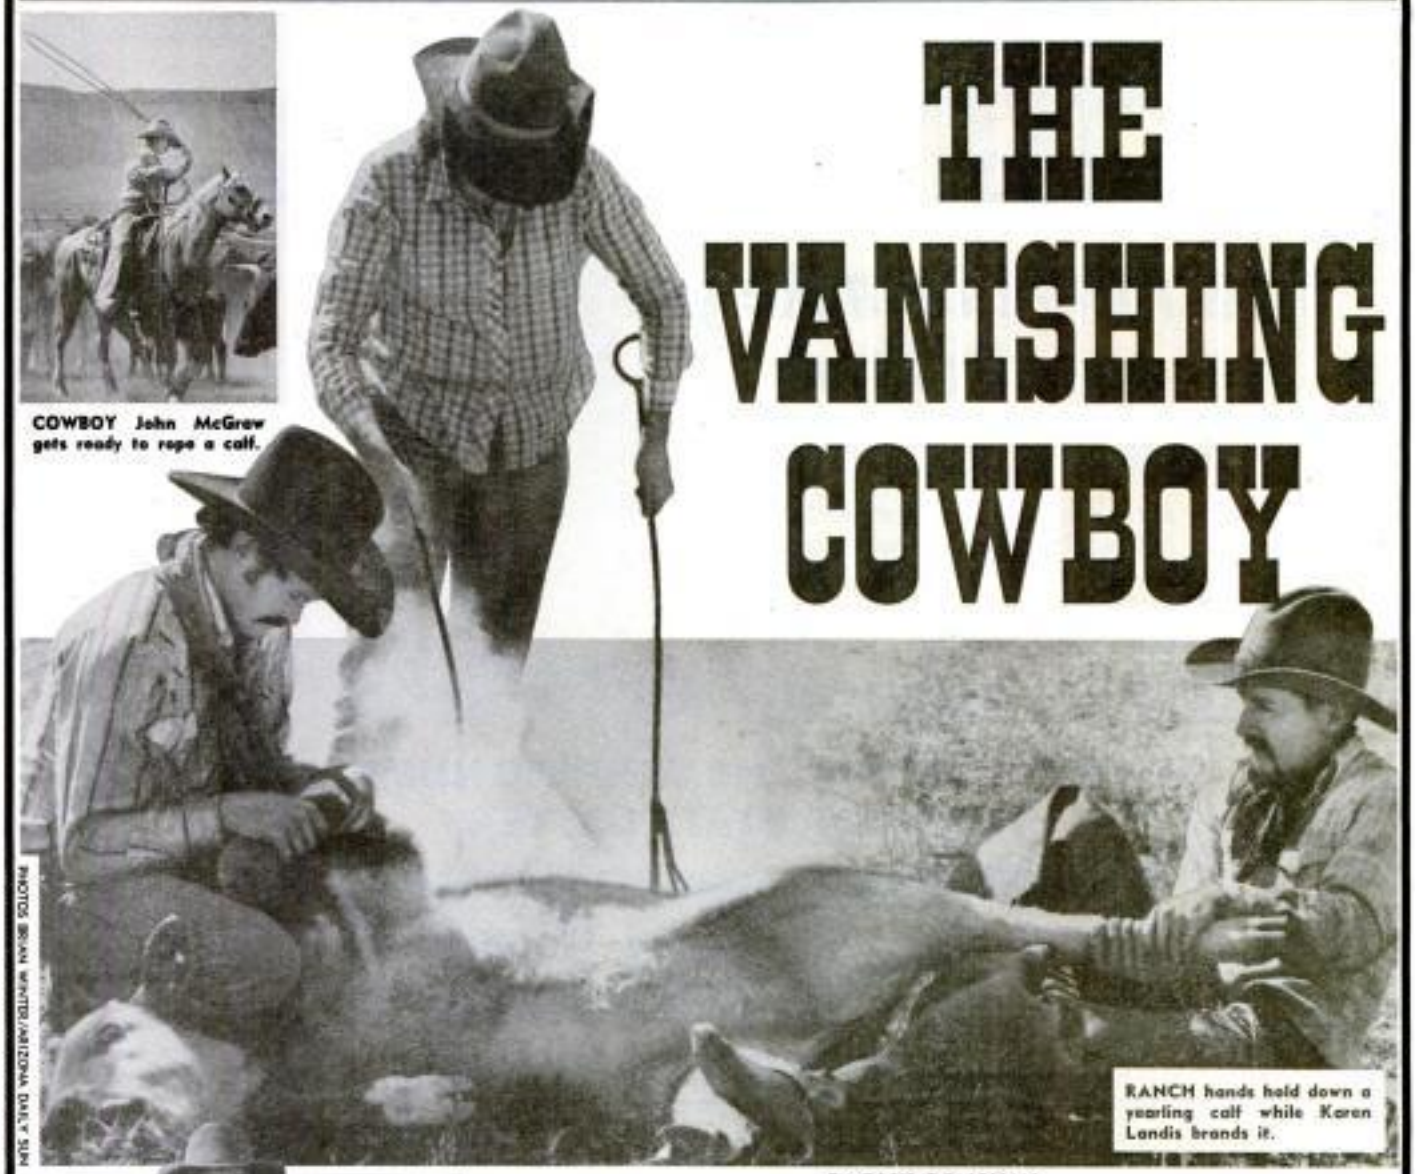
THE VANISHING COWBOY

COWBOY John McGraw gets ready to rope a calf.



RANCH hands hold down a yearling calf while Karen Landis brands it.

By DICK DONOVAN

Where have all the cowboys gone?

Is that the title of a new Willie Nelson hit? A sequel to "Mamas, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys?"

Nope! It isn't a song at all. It's a sad and sobbering fact of life. The American cowboy, the lean, lanky, leather-faced hero of the old West, is in short supply.

Worried ranchers can't find men to care for their cattle

Higher wages and better benefits at other jobs have young people fleeing the ranches and shunning the rugged, often lonely life of the range cowboy, who sleeps in a bedroll on the ground, rises at 5 a.m., and doesn't bathe for weeks at a time — all for $500 a month!

From the Big Bend of Texas to the Big Sky of Montana, the serious shortage of honest-to-goodness cowboys is forcing big ranchers to change the way they operate. Even worse, it's forcing many small spreads to shut down boy," laments Jack Hunning, a third-generation rancher in Los Lunas, N. Mex. "A lot of people fancy themselves cowboys. But they aren't."

It's a situation that's "bad and getting worse," says Ed Davis, manager of the 750,000-acre Diamond Ace Ranch, the biggest spread in Arizona.

Davis has good reason to be gloomy. He has only seven cowboys doing the work of 17.

Out on the sprawling Double O Ranch in the high desert of been punching cows since he was 14 and he wouldn't have it any other way.

One grueling month last year, the Double O had no cowboys at all. Landis and his wife Karen did it all until he could find help worth hiring.

"A lot of guys come here and they think they're cowboys," the wiry foreman said. "But they find out real sudden-like that they ain't."

Then, putting a match to another Marlboro, Landis remarks,

I make people into LOTTERY MILLIONAIRES.

Plane crash survivors were waiting to die!

HIGH-HEELED heroine Patricia Potter required hospital care after her mind-boggling ordeal in the California desert.

By SUSAN JIMISON

Plucky Patricia Potter helped save three plane wreck survivors by trudging down a mountain and across a desert — wearing her high-heeled shoes all the way!

After 9½ hours of stumbling down a rugged mountainside and trekking in 90-degree heat, the 40-year-old Santa Barbara, Calif., woman was found by a motorist. Rescue workers saved her friends a few hours later.

"She walked in high heels because she had to," said Lt. Lee Wiegel of the police department in Palm Springs, Calif., where the plane crashed. "If she had been in bare feet her feet would have been shredded.

"Luckily, the rescue people found all of the plane's passengers and there were no serious injuries. I think Patricia Potter was very courageous, very tenacious."

Miss Potter, two male friends and one other female took off late one night from the Palm Springs airport heading home after a stay in the desert resort. Moments after takeoff their plane failed to gain altitude and crashed in the mountains.

The two men were hurt but Miss Potter and her female companion felt well enough to go for help. When her exhausted friend gave up halfway down the mountain, Patricia Potter mustered the strength to go on.

She picked her way down the mountain — through rock stubble, ravines and boulders — covering four miles in the dark of night. By morning she was on the blistering desert near Palm Springs, trudging through the sand and rock in her stiletto heels.

Finally, near noon, Miss Potter came to a two-lane highway where a motorist stopped for her and took her to get help.

"She was very dehydrated," Lt. Wiegel said. "She was very lucky she didn't get injured on the way down.

"She was hospitalized for observation and we contacted the mountain rescue unit. Fortunately, they found all the survivors."

Office workers putting best foot forward with walking desk

Office workers who are sick and tired of sitting all day will soon be able to type away and get their exercise at the same time — with something called the walking desk.

Inventor Nathan Edelson says his desk will come equipped with a treadmill that will allow the formerly sedentary worker to walk up to a mile an hour on the job.

One version of the desk is expected on the market soon — with a price tag of $3,500.

Edelson says his research shows that many of the aches and pains, as well as much of the stress and illness, that afflict office workers can be blamed on long hours of sitting. With his desk, the inventor says, it'll be possible to walk five miles a day on

Pellet-gun killer gets slap on wrist

Barry Siciliano loaded his pellet gun and aimed it at a small boy riding a bicycle, shooting him in the head and killing him — but a judge let him get away with a slap on the wrist, the boy's dad says.

"I did a stupid thing and I am sorry for it," Siciliano, of Westwood, Ohio, told the judge. He told police he only wanted to see if the pellet would bounce off the boy's head.

The boy, Kenneth Slaughter Jr., 11, went into a coma following the injury and died seven months later. Siciliano, 27, pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and was sentenced to 5 to 25 years.

"My son is dead and he'll probably be out in five years," said the boy's angry father, Kenneth Slaughter Sr. "I think he did it purposely. I think he intended to hurt my son."

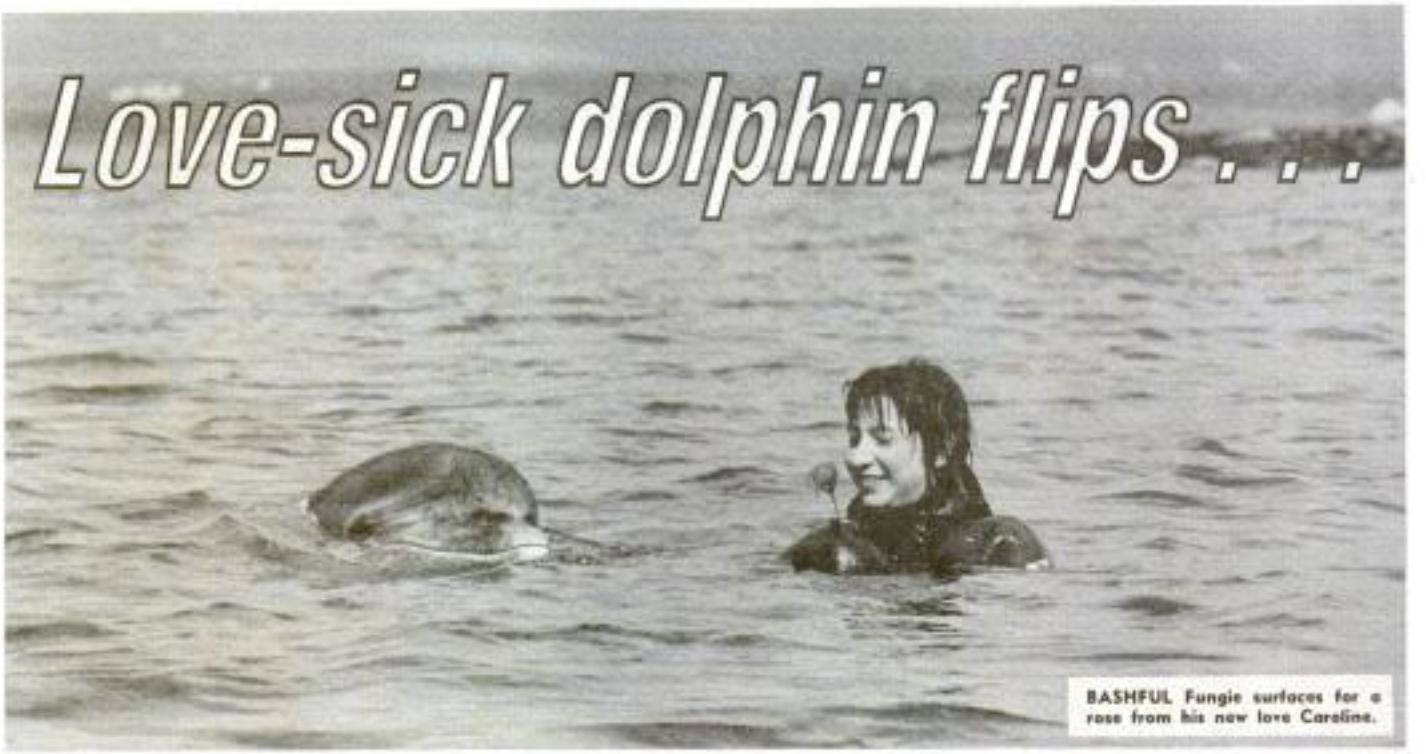
Love-sick dolphin flips . . .



BASHFUL Fungie surfaces for a rose from his new love Caroline.

. . . for a lady diver

By ROSE GRADY

Love is in bloom in an isolated bay in Ireland where a doleful dolphin named Fungie has flipped head over tail — for a pretty scuba diver!

And whenever diver Caroline Hussey plunges into the depths to explore the caverns of Dingle Bay, lonely Fungie goes absolutely overboard with delight.

He rolls on his back while Caroline rubs his tummy, and waggles his flippers in unrestrained ecstasy. He nuzzles her diving mask and lays his head gently in her lap.

The amazing love affair began after poor Fungie was spurned by his mate. One day she simply swam out of his life.

Alas, it was a terrible blow and Fungie was devastated. He couldn't eat or sleep. He just floated around the bay like a log.

Then 24-year-old Dublin diver Caroline swam into his life. He saw her in the distance and sped in like a torpedo for a closer look. It was love at first sight.

"As I dived, this gray and white streak appeared," Caroline recalled. "At first I was terrified. But it just swam alongside me. I couldn't believe my eyes . . . it was actually winking at me.

"We hit it right off and I could tell the dolphin wanted to be my friend. I named him Fungie, though I don't know why I picked that name. My boyfriend Peter has tried to play with him, but Fungie takes no notice. He just keeps staring at me with those big beautiful eyes.

"When it's time for me to go, Fungie goes positively wild. He dances on the water and jumps up to bite my flippers.

"He does everything he can to stop me leaving. He even tried to nudge the boat back when it heads for shore."

Now Caroline visits Fungie every weekend, and she wears a gold dolphin pendant given to her by Peter, who's pretty much resigned himself to the fact that he has a love rival.

"I think Peter knows that Fungie's the other male in my life," Caroline smiled.

GUTSY Kari Miller holds her little brother Kevin after his rescue.

Crippled teenager saves little kid from drowning

Handicapped heroine Kari Miller fished her 3-year-old brother from the family pool — but she didn't run to the rescue, she crawled!

The brave Watertown, Wis., teenager depends on crutches to get around, but in her rush to save her brother Kevin she left them behind. She crawled to the poolside, slipped into the water and hauled little Kevin to safety.

"His horsey fell into the pool, so he went to get it," recalled Kari, 15. "I saw him fall in and I knew I had to get him out."

Kari has been disabled since she contracted viral encephalitis in 1982. Doctors said the pretty brunette would never be able to walk again because of damage to her brain, but courageous Kari proved them wrong.

After years of therapy she can now get around using aluminum crutches and swims regularly in the family pool. In fact, it was her swimming skills that saved her brother's life.

Kevin and her sister, Kristen, 5, when the tots managed to unlock a door to the pool deck, where Kevin fell in.

Hearing Kristen's screams, Kari dropped her crutches for speed and crawled through the house and out to the pool deck. She slipped into the water and swam to Kevin, who was floating in the deep end of the pool.

Although she was in nine feet of water, the courageous girl managed to lift her brother out of the water and flop him

Cops: Speed demon beats up gal he thought was driving too slow!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A motorist obeying the legal speed limit got rammed from behind by a pickup and punched out by its driver, cops say, because she wasn't going fast enough.

Lisa McKelvey-Smith said she had just passed several cars going slower than the 55 m.p.h. limit on Interstate 5 near Seattle, Wash., when she saw an approaching pickup in her rearview mirror.

"I guess he was really moving," she said. A few seconds later the pickup was about six inches from her rear bumper, she said.

"All I could see out the back was his grille. I couldn't see who was driving. Then he hit me. I thought he was going to back off like it was an accident . . . and then he speeded up and hit me again," she said.

Lisa pulled onto the freeway shoulder and stopped and the man followed.

"I thought he was coming up to exchange insurance information," she said. "Instead, he was furious, and I had no idea why."

Lisa said the man belted her in the face three times. "He dislocated my jaw. He hit me so hard I went backward and ripped the heels off my shoes. He said something like, he'd teach me to get out of his way.

"That's what it was all about," she said. "I was not going fast enough for him."

The pickup roared away but the battered and bruised secretary noted its license tag number. She called state police who later arrested Charles LaCour, a Seattle bus driver.

LaCour was charged with simple assault, hit-run driving and reckless driving.

Cranky dog that inherited $40Gs is put to death

Benjy the Yorkshire terrier inherited $40,000 from his doting owner, but he died before he got a chance to live it up.

The canine was so cantankerous that the staff at the fancy kennels where he was to live in luxury had the dog put down.

"The dog just did not like strangers," explained an executor for the estate of Benjy's dead owner, Mrs. Diana Busfield of Nottingham, England. "When Mrs. Busfield was alive, he bit the nurses who were looking after her. The kennels were in no way responsible. We simply could not find a suitable home for the dog in view of his behavior."

Benjy's inheritance will be divided among three animal charities.

Hogs ate my Uncle Ed!

Editors: I was interested in the story you wrote recently about the man in England who disappeared and the cops think some pigs ate him. The hog farmers say that is ridiculous, but I know it can happen because a few months ago our hogs ate my Uncle Ed.

Ed was an old man just like this guy Algy Taylor and one day he went out to slop the hogs and died. By the time me and my cousin Toby Ray found him, the hogs had eaten almost all of him except his overalls. We buried what was left and persuaded my Aunt Emmy to have a closed-casket funeral so she would never know what really happened to Uncle Ed.

So when those hog farmers tell the police pigs don't eat people, they are lying.

The problem we have now is that Aunt Emmy is starting to slaughter some of the hogs for the family and she's going to be eating them — and expecting us to eat them, too. Knowing about Uncle Ed, me and Toby Ray are feeling a little weird about eating the bacon and ham and ribs around here. Do you have any advice? — Name and address withheld.

We tried to get Dotti to help us out with your question but she said she doesn't do problems involving man-eating hogs. It seems to us, though, you have just two alternatives: Either Ed-ucate Aunt Emmy about the dining habits of her porkers or be prepared to squirm your way through the ham hocks and beans for the next few months. — Editors

'Jackie the Ripper' just getting even

Editors: I know it was a creepy story, but it gave me a little chill of delight to read about "Jackie the Ripper" — the lady in Spain who's been slashing up all those men.

That's the sort of thing men have been doing to women down through the ages and there's some kind of justice for us women in seeing that the tables are being turned. I say what's good for the goose is good for the gander! Hacking up people with a knife isn't a nice thing to do — but if someone has to do it it might as well be a woman.

Cat's taxidermist shows off his stuff

Editors: Eek! That picture in the July 5 paper of the stuffed cat that the taxidermist goofed up was the funniest thing I've seen in years. I laughed so hard my sides hurt.

My wife's getting out of the loony bin next week and I wanted to show her that picture because she's a real cat lover.

Unfortunately, my pit bull pooped on that issue and I had to throw it away. So would you please, please run another picture of that poor stuffed kitty so I can show it to my wife? — R.R., Chicago, Ill.

My life was a ball till I married an old bat

Dear Dotti: Nobody ever let on that the good life would come to a screeching halt once a guy got hitched, so I went ahead and got married. I thought my social life would only get better with a lady around all the time. Boy, did I get snookered!

The lady of my choice, once she got that wedding ring on her finger, changed overnight from party girl to penny-pinching nag. Instead of going out with a real sweet lady who liked to dance and drink and eat fried shrimp dinners, I've found myself stuck at home with a party-pooper.

It's gotten so the biggest thing in my weekend is going down to the corner for milk and bread. And when you realize that our social life used to cover three counties before the wife and I got tied down, this is pretty sorry. Why did a good date turn into an old bat so quickly? — Rollin' Good Times, Alahama

Dear Rollin' Good Times: Your bride got worried that while your partying was putting roses in your cheeks, it was also putting a few on your casket.

My wife likes me to wear her clothes

Dear Dotti: I've been doing the housework since I got laid off a year ago, so my wife bought me a housedress. She insists that I look good in it and I spend more time in a dress now than I do in trousers.

While I don't wear women's clothes out in public yet, my wife encourages me to wear them when we have a party for her gal friends. Her friends act like they enjoy looking at me dressed this way. They tell me that since I am "wearing the skirts" in the relationship, I should really wear skirts!

Should I please my wife, who wears the pants anyway, or should I switch back to trousers? — Skirted, Ohio

Dear Skirted: You want to dress up like Tinkerbell when you do the bathroom floor, O.K., but only a fruit basket lets his little woman lend him a blouse for a night at the bowling alley.

How do I get my lover to trust me?

Dear Dotti: I'm in love with a man I met seven months ago. I've never loved anyone the way I love him. He knows how I feel but he says he can't love me back because he's afraid of getting hurt.

I've been hurt, too, worse than he has, but I'm not going to let it ruin my life.

I do everything I can for him, hoping he'll change his mind. Do you think he will ever be able to trust me? — Needs Help, North Carolina

Dear Needs Help: No amount of sweetness is going to warm up your cold fish. You've given him enough line, now throw him back.

Margaret Barker and William Firminger have been a real-life vampire couple ever since they fell in love — at first bite!

The dark duo from Middlesex, England, drink each other's blood. They are terrified of mirrors and garlic. And they also hate leaving their creepy cobweb-strewn home until the sun goes down at night.

They've even had their front teeth capped with porcelain fangs to improve their bite.

"I like the taste of blood," said Miss Barker, who is 32 and calls herself Vampira. "Some people's tastes salty and some not, it depends on the person.

"William's tastes very nice. It makes me feel happy and starts my adrenaline flowing."

Firminger, who decided he was a vampire after he saw a Dracula movie as a boy of 11, fondly recalls the night he and Miss Barker met.

He said she took one look at him and promptly asked if she could sink her fangs into his neck.

"Vampira said it would be a friendly nip," he said. "But after she bit me she ran her finger along my neck and licked the blood off."

The couple have been inseparable ever since. And while they may be Britain's only vampire couple, they are not alone in their blood lust.

Vincent Popely of York, England, is also a vampire — and a dead ringer for Count Dracula himself!

"I'm not an oddball," said Popely, who routinely slashes girlfriends with a razor and drinks their blood on dates.

"Everybody has a dark secret," he continued. "Living like Dracula just happens to be mine."

In fact, Popely knew he was a vampire since childhood.

His mother, Joan Popely, said: "I first noticed that he was different from other boys when he was about 6. He used to steal my red nail varnish and take it up to his bedroom where he painted red spots on his neck."

Popely now sleeps in a coffin and wears a black undertaker's frock with flowing black cape. He works the night shift in a chocolate factory, packing candies.

And he's planning to change his name to Mr. Death.

For all their bizarre tastes, Popely, Firminger and Miss Barker have not run afoul of the law.

World's tallest woman grows & grows & grows

An Indonesian who is thought to be the world's tallest woman has been hospitalized in Java. According to her doctor, the lady stands 7 feet 10 inches tall!

Dr. Askandar Tjokoprawiro said the woman, identified only as Mulia, is undergoing treatment to stop her from growing even taller.

She suffers from a condition called acromegaly, or giantism, and hasn't been able to walk since 1977. The Guinness Book of World Records lists the tallest living woman as Sandy Allen, 32, of Niagara Falls, Canada.

The Canadian woman is 7 feet 7¼ inches tall — which means that Mulia is a whopping three inches bigger than she is.

The woman's medical expenses are being paid by a newspaper whose reporters found Mulia living in a hut in a village in Borneo,

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

Blocks calorie absorption

SWEDEN—Medical researchers at the University of Kuopio, in Finland, have discovered (accidentally) a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery enables an overweight individual to lose pounds and fatty tissue without dieting or exercise.

Scientists made the discovery while searching for a formula to lower cholesterol. In a controlled study of a test group of people, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the doctors were astounded to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. The published report of this study stated, "A highly significant decrease in body weight was seen" in patients who received the formula.

The formula was then tested in Sweden at Sahlgren Hospital, University of Goteborg. Again, all patients lost a substantial amount of weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report detailing this study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits." One patient in this study lost more than 30 pounds.

According to one informed source, the active ingredient comes from a 100% natural botanical source and contains no drugs or stimulants. When taken before mealtime it bonds with the food you eat and "ties up" calories, preventing their absorption.

A substantial portion of the calories ingested therefore pass through the digestive system unabsorbed. The body has to get energy to replace the lost calories, so it starts to burn stored fat. The result is rapid body weight loss. Extensive clinical tests have verified the safety of this formula for long-term use.

The formula is marketed in tablet form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida, has exclusive North American distribution rights. PROUD parents Brett and Karen Uren hold 3-week-old Adam. A year ago Karen gave birth to Siamese twins Brendan and Peter, right, but the two little babies died.

'We are both so happy,' say mom & dad

IT'S A MIRACLE!
Parents of Siamese twins have a healthy baby boy

By SUSAN JIMISON

Parenthood has finally brought joy to Karen and Brett Uren, whose Siamese twin sons died in their infancy last year.

They have just had a new — and normal — baby boy, a perfect little one to heal hearts broken by tragedy.

The proud mom and dad thought they were expecting twins a second time when doctors announced Karen was pregnant. But the Doonside, Australia, couple say they weren't disappointed that their son arrived alone.

"He is everything we could have asked for," Karen, 21, said happily. "One baby is enough."

The Urens made headlines in Australia and appeared in an article in The NEWS last year after Karen delivered little Brendan and Peter, who were joined from the chest down.

Their love and devotion to the babies was heartwarming and their decision to raise their sons by themselves won them respect around the world. But shortly after the courageous couple took their babies home, tragedy struck. The infants died of heart failure.

Incredibly, just 24 hours after that tragedy, the grief-stricken parents learned God had sent them a consolation — Karen was pregnant again!

Even the news that the baby was expected on a Friday the 13th didn't dampen the couple's joy.

"But I am pretty superstitious and when I learned Karen was to have him on Friday 13 I wanted to go out and stock up on rabbits' feet," Brett joked.

Little Adam is doing fine

Little Adam arrived in perfect health after a cesarean delivery and he's doing just fine, thank you.

His proud parents have taken him home and the joy he brings them is easing their grief over the loss of the twins.

"He is really good and sleeps almost all of the time," Karen said.

"All we are doing is taking turns at bottle-feeding and checking him. Domestic life is sure great.

"He is a wonderful baby — I cannot believe our luck. We are both so happy. He is a miracle."

Tragic teen kills himself over prank

A hardworking teen who saved for two years to buy a motorcycle killed himself after a jealous friend put sugar in the oil and ruined the engine.

One day before his 17th birthday when Sean Lawrence would have been old enough to drive his new motorcycle for the first time he discovered the cruel trick, weighted himself down with stones and jumped into a river near his home in Outwell, England.

"My son died over a motorcycle engine," said Ivan Lawrence, the boy's father.

According to authorities, Sean bought oil for his motorcycle and then stopped off to visit some of his friends on the way home.

Investigators said one of Sean's friends mixed sugar with the oil. Four boys were being questioned by police to determine which one was responsible for the deadly prank.

Divine sign

Dale Haupt, a New Riegel, Ohio, farmer created a 7-acre message to God asking for rain. Haupt was praying for relief from this summer's drought.

Brave teen plunges into fiery blaze to save her 2 sisters

By SUSAN JIMISON

Teenager Mary Fitzgerald may be young in years, but she showed the steely courage of a movie super hero when her home caught on fire — and she saved the lives of her two younger sisters.

Her hair was aflame but she kept on going

Her hair aflame, the Taylor, Mich., 17-year-old plunged into an inferno to rescue Shannon, 6, and Chelsea, 12. So cool was she in the emergency that she won an award from fire fighters for her bravery.

"She's a heroine — she did something the average person wouldn't do," said Bob Diel, Chief of the Taylor Fire Department. "And for a young person it is even more amazing.

"Many young people would hide during a fire, but Mary remembered what to do. She would have died and her two sisters would have died if she hadn't acted the way she did."

According to Chief Diel, Mary awoke inside her rambling family home to find thick black smoke hanging in the air. It was about 3 a.m. and her nephew, grandmother, three sisters and a neighbor were asleep in the house. The teenager went to investigate and found smoke coming from a bedroom. When she opened the door, dense smoke and flames shot from inside.

"She went to her sisters' room, grabbed her younger sister and put her in the shower," Chief Diel said. "Then she wrapped Shannon's head in wet towels, grabbed her and crawled with her past the burning bedroom. She got on top of her to protect her from the flames. By this time the flames were shooting into the hallway and down the stairs. When Mary got Shannon out she discovered that Chelsea had stayed upstairs. She tried to go back to get her through the flames but she couldn't get through."

Mary called upstairs to her frightened 12-year-old sister, instructing the child to run to a window balcony. Then she raced outside, her hair smoldering from the fire, and pulled Chelsea to safety from the balcony.

"We gave her a medal of bravery and an award," Chief Diel told The NEWS. "And we collected money to help her family.

"Mary is a heroine and we want everyone to know it."

FIRE FIGHTERS awarded 17-year-old Mary Fitzgerald a medal for her amazing courage during terrible fire.

DELIGHTED John Rogers sits in his fancy Ferrari sports car — a gift to the popular teacher from his students and ex-students.

Flashy going-away present for a great teacher!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Students had a little surprise for math teacher John Rogers on graduation day this year — a shiny red Ferrari for his retirement!

The Highlands, N.J., man was ending a career of 30 years at the blackboard and the kids got together to give him a whale of a send-off.

"I looked at my wife and I said to her, 'How can we afford this?' " Rogers told The NEWS. "She said, 'We don't have to.' "

Rogers, 55, said he was so astonished with the carbon copy of the sporty Ferrari on TV's Magnum, P.I. that he thought his students had just rented it for him for the day. But it was his, all his.

"I think it's a dream," he said. "Teachers just don't drive Ferraris."

Rogers' retirement bonanza was the work of a group of former students who had sat in the man's math classes, acted in school plays he directed or played ball on high school teams that he coached.

They told Rogers' wife of their plans, but swore her to secrecy.

On graduation day, while his last group of students was rehearsing for that night's ceremony, Rogers was asked to go to the school parking lot.

A man drove up in a shiny red convertible and handed Rogers the keys.

"I was flabbergasted," he said. "Then the guy started giving me directions about the car. He said, 'I'm the guy they bought the car from.' I couldn't believe it."

Rogers sank into the soft, cream-colored leather seats and took his gift for a ride and he's hardly been out of his convertible since.

"It was given in the name of all of my students," he said. "Some of my ex-students are multimillionaires, but my wife won't divulge who the organizers of this were.

"It was one of those make-your-day things. It's a great country, America."

How to potty train a cow

Farmers will soon have a new device to help them clean up the dairy business — by potty training cows!

The $40 contraption consists of a T-shaped bar that hangs over the bossy's back in her stall.

When the cow is about to go, she raises her back slightly. But if her back touches anything, she instinctively takes a step backward.

The step back ensures that the droppings fall into a vat where they can be easily collected for fertilizer. And by using the "potty," the cow keeps its stall clean and saves the farmer many hours of janitorial duty, developers say.

Dirty shirt lands gal in jail

A woman showed up for jury duty and was promptly locked up in the slammer because an angry judge didn't like what he considered to be a vulgar phrase on her T-shirt.

Lillie Smith, 35, was approaching the witness box to be questioned as a potential juror when Judge Eugene Bogen noticed the words, "S - - - Happens" on the T-shirt she was wearing.

of court and ordered her out of the courtroom.

The woman spent eight hours in the hoosegow and was fined $50.

Mrs. Smith had been summoned to appear in court as a potential juror for the civil court in Indianaola, Fla.

"The judge can find you in contempt for what you do or say," explained court clerk Sammy Ely. Judges try to maintain proper courtroom decorum.

Crook leaves trail of hats

Bumbling burglar Lavon King was sentenced to 10 years in prison after cops nabbed him — by following a trail of hot hats.

King, 27, and an accomplice had just burglarized a Jacksonville, Fla., department store when police spotted them outside the store.

The crooks hightailed it, tossing aside an assortment of stolen hats as they ran.

Honeymooners return to find their house is 'sold'

. . . but it was only a prank

Honeymooners Glen and Karen Deacon arrived at their dream house after their wedding trip — and found a "sold" sign in the window!

What's more, their furniture was gone and a strange man in a bathrobe answered the door in Exeter, England.

The couple were so shattered that Karen, 20, burst into tears. Then they found out the truth: It was a wedding prank played on them by friend Sonya Beckett.

"I could have killed her," Karen said later. "I was heartbroken.

"My curtains were gone and different ones had been put in their place. And all our furniture, including a TV and compact disc player and carpets were missing. All that was left was our three-piece suite covered in some old sheets."

Karen never got carried over the threshold, but after a few hours the newlyweds got over their outrage and regained their sense of humor.

And Sonya is defending her prank on the basis that Karen and Glen play a lot of jokes themselves.

"We decided to turn the tables," she said. "I knew Karen wouldn't be taken in easily so we had to move all her furniture upstairs."

Homeowner gets hard lesson from quick-dry cement

Handy Keith Preece ordered two tons of quick-dry concrete — which turned into a rock solid mountain in his driveway!

After phoning his order to a cement company, the London security guard went to a pal's house for coffee. The stuff dried in a 5 x 7 foot mound before he got back.

"I know it's my fault and it's going to cost me," said Preece. "When I've chipped this lot off I'm going to have to order another.

"But the next time I'll be waiting for it. My new motto is: 'Never visit a friend the day the concrete comes.'"

GOIN' OUT IN STYLE!

ROCKER Mama Cass Elliot died of a heart attack caused by a weight problem.

Wacky deaths of the rich & famous

By DEREK CLONTZ

Attila the Hun choked to death. Health food guru Euell Gibbons succumbed to a stomach ailment and Sitting Bull died in a shootout — with police!

Those are just a few of the fascinating deaths included in Malcolm Forbes' gripping new book: They Went That-a-Way (Simon & Schuster, New York, $18.95).

Here's more:

● Chang and Eng Bunker. These celebrated Siamese twins achieved international fame as circus freaks before their deaths in 1874. As a chronic alcoholic, Chang was the weaker twin and died during a bout with bronchitis.

Eng died a few hours later — of fright! Startled doctors said the shock of Chang's death literally scared Eng to death. Chang's bronchitis did not affect him, even though they were joined at the chest. The world-famous twins were 62.

SUPERSTAR SIAMESE TWINS
Chang and Eng Bunker. Their bizarre deaths matched their freakish birth.

● George Washington. The common cold and bad medicine combined to kill America's first President in 1799. Doctors summoned to treat him for a sore throat and congestion siphoned off a whopping two pints of blood to rid him of infection. The procedure robbed Washington of what energy and resistance he had left. He died one day after catching a cold at the age of 67.

● Sitting Bull. The Indian who masterminded the defeat of Custer at Little Big Horn was shot to death at the Standing Rock Reservation in South Dakota in 1890.

The federal authorities regarded Sitting Bull as a trouble maker. They commissioned an Indian police force to arrest him. He refused to go and called on friends for help. Shots were fired. Two bullets hit and killed Sitting Bull.

● Mama Cass Elliot. A lot of people think that the horrendously fat singer of the 1960s rock group The Mamas and the Papas choked on a sandwich. In fact, she died of a heart attack brought on by her obesity. The year was 1974. She was 33.

● Attila the Hun. The fearsome warrior who threatened to conquer all of Western civilization in the fifth century got dog drunk on his wedding night — and was found dead the next day! Overexertion with his new bride apparently caused a blood vessel in his nose to break. Attila was so drunk that he choked to death on his own blood.

● Clark Gable. The legendary screen star was cast opposite Marilyn Monroe in The Misfits, which proved to be his final movie. While filming he complained that a tempermental Monroe was going to give him a heart attack.

Two days after filming ended, Gable had stomach pains. Doctors confirmed that he had suffered a mild heart attack. He died later that day. He was 59.

● Euell Gibbons. The famous health food writer, who became a star by touting breakfast cereal in the 1970s, developed an ulcer in 1974 and died of an undisclosed stomach ailment a year later.

AH CHOO! George Washington was felled by the common cold — and his docs!

SCREEN IDOL Clark Gable claims Marilyn Monroe was driving him crazy. She starred in his last movie.

Stricken boy is America's littlest general

An unbelievable dream came true for wide-eyed 4-year-old Jamie Dayhoff when he was sworn in as an honest-to-goodness brigadier general by Army Lt. Col. Robert Thoriakson. The seriously ill Easton, Pa., youngster — a victim of lymphatic cancer — was brought to Fort Indiantown Gap where he was fitted out in a combat uniform and then took the oath of allegiance to God and country to become the littlest general in the U.S. Army. "I'm here to be a general . . . a GI Joe . . . a good guy," said Jamie. It was all made possible by an organization called Dreams Come True which gives sick kids a once-in-a-lifetime chance to Ape's escape nipped — in the buds!

A pansy orangutan named Kumang busted out of the San Francisco Zoo, only to be captured without a fuss — when it stopped to smell some orchids!

The 100-pound ape was spotted sitting atop an orchid display case. Zookeepers promptly zapped it with a tranquilizer dart and returned it to the orangutan enclosure.

The orchid display is only 100 yards from the orangutan enclosure.

AIDS fear makes man as nutty as a fruitcake

Dippy driver tries to sell his rented car

By JACK ALEXANDER

A terrified ladies' man tried to sell a rented car so he could leave town after a jealous lover played a cruel joke on him — saying she was an AIDS carrier.

The unidentified Canadian man rented a car and drove around Winnipeg until he decided to get a blood test. His fears increased when the results were inconclusive.

Police were called when the young man, 22, tried to trade in the rental car for a cheaper model and $1,000 so he could leave town.

The young man's thinking was clouded by his fear of deadly AIDS, his lawyer told Judge Charles Newcombe.

He was given a one-year suspended sentence on the condition he pay the outstanding $200 for the car rental.

"He's happy," said lawyer Bill Malcolm. "He has since received the test results and he is not infected by the HIV virus."

Burglar gets big surprise!

An armed burglar broke into a house and then wished he hadn't — when the burly homeowner beat the daylights out of him with an axe handle.

Former football star Frank Tripucka awakened in his Essex Falls, N.J., home to find a man standing over him with a gun and a flashlight.

The would-be robber forced Tripucka, 60, and his wife into their garage. Tripucka, a former Notre Dame star, grabbed the axe handle and flailed away.

The frightened burglar fled but was caught about half an hour later.

Unfortunately, in his frenzy, Tripucka accidentally hit his wife Randi with the axe handle. The wound required 14 stitches.

Cops say gal asked psychic to kill hubby

An attractive young woman wed to a man more than twice her age offered her fortune teller $10,000 to use psychic powers to kill her wealthy husband, say cops.

By RAFE KLINGER

But the alleged scheme was foiled when tarot card reader Kathy Fragnito blabbed to the husband, 74-year-old Joseph Peters, owner of a posh golf and country club in North Whitehall Township, Pa.

Peters went to state police who took a statement from Miss Fragnito and then arrested Peters' 31-year-old wife Lynne.

She was charged with criminal solicitation.

"She (Mrs. Peters) thinks his whole story is absurd," said State Trooper Thomas Durilla, charged with investigating the matter.

The Peters, who have a 4-year-old son, were married after a 13-year relationship last December.

Shortly before the marriage, Mrs. Peters began visiting Miss Fragnito, who does tarot card readings as a hobby.

Two months after the marriage, Miss Fragnito claims she was offered $10,000, a mink coat and money from the victim's insurance "if I would cause the death of Joe Peters through my psychic powers in the use of black magic, or by any means.

"She did not care how I would kill Joe Peters, just so I would kill him is all she wanted," Miss Fragnito said.

Fragnito then alerted Peters, who went to police. Two weeks later, Peters filed for divorce, said police.

Henhouse looks like ICBM hit it

Irish farmer James Culhane got his dander up when his henhouse was obliterated by a giant block of frozen waste — that fell from the rest room of a passing jet.

Engineers at Shannon airport told him the missile formed when waste from a leaky airplane toilet froze while plummeting to earth. Culhane said he'd like to flush out the culprit so he can sue.

He even wore a blindfold so he wouldn't have to look at her

My husband dumped me because I am so fat!

BUTTERBALL Janet Lappin says she had a sleek physique when she and her hubby wed seven years ago. "I started eating . . . and never quit," she says.

By JOE BERGER

Jellybelly Janet Lappin knew her marriage was on the rocks when her disgusted husband Michael started wearing a blindfold at night — so he wouldn't have to look at her acres of shivering, quivering flab!

And the chocolate-chomping mom knew it was really over the day Michael marched in and told her, "You're uglier than Miss Piggy."

With that taunt still ringing in her ears, jumbo Janet — crunching the scales at 240 pounds — waddled off to live with her parents.

"He dumped me because I was just so fat he didn't want to look at me anymore," the heavyweight housewife told reporters in Warrington, England.

"I never thought I'd become a frump, but somewhere along the line I just did."

Jilted Janet, 32, says she had a physique as sleek as anybody's when she and Michael were married seven years ago. But when the first of their three kids came along, the lady's shape turned from firm to frightful.

"I shot up seven stone (100 pounds) in just months," said the meaty mom. "I started eating more when I got pregnant and I just never quit.

"I got good and fat but Michael didn't seem to mind at first so I just kept wolfing down my chips and chocolates."

Flabby Janet didn't realize her husband was so turned off by her tubby torso that he'd found himself a curvy cutie on the side.

'You're uglier than Miss Piggy,' he tells her and walks out with me in the bedroom," she recalled. "He had a million excuses. He always had a headache or something.

"Then he started wearing his blindfold at night. He said at first it was to help him sleep, but eventually he admitted he just didn't want to have to look at my fat body."

Then the blubber-hating hubby started burying their marriage under an avalanche of insults.

"He told me over and over how embarrassed he was to have somebody so grotesque for a wife, and how he didn't sick just to look at me. And the more nasty things he said, the more I stuffed myself and the fatter I got.

"Then when he said I was uglier than Miss Piggy, I knew there was nothing left to save."

Now, the tub-of-lard lady is living with her three children and waiting for her divorce to come through. And she still has those unwanted pounds.

"I'd love to lose a lot of weight, but when you're living on welfare you just can't afford expensive diets," she said.

Ex-wrestler kills woman over 'love' bite

A 375-pound ex-wrestler, known in his grappling heyday as "Crusher," stabbed and strangled a petite, 100-pound woman — because she bit him during sex, cops say.

Police in Stamford, Conn., have charged 27-year-old Lar-

Two girls perish in circus lion rampage

A fun day at the circus ended in death when performing lions broke loose from their trainer — and chewed up two little girls.

Two of the three lions went straight for Maira da Silva, 2, and her sister, Marina, 5, who were sitting in the front row of the circus in Colonel Fabriciano, Brazil.

One of the crazed beasts grabbed Maira by the head and the other one mauled Marina, said Police Chief Osman Canela.

The youngsters had gone to the circus with their aunt and uncle, who were both injured trying to save their nieces.

Shoppers delighted! SUPERMARKET OPENS CENTER FOR CHILDREN

Harried parents who do their shopping at Country Fair supermarkets no longer have to lug the kids up and down the aisles — because each store has its own child-care center.

The Fair Play center located near the entrance of each of the southern Illinois stores has a TV set that plays cartoon videos, an aquarium, building blocks and other toys to amuse the little ones.

Parents simply check the kids into the center when they enter, then sign them out when they leave.

"It's the best idea to come along since shopping carts," said a thrilled housewife. "I can get my groceries in half the time now."

Bathtub boa scares dickens out of doctor

A young doctor walked into his bathroom one morning and was greeted by a stranger in his bathtub — a three-and-a-half-foot boa constrictor.

The doctor, Berhanu Balcha of Winnipeg, Canada, says he closed the door immediately and thought awhile.

"That was my first reaction," he said. "Then I got dressed, wondering how it ever got in the bathtub and how I was going to get rid of it."

Humane Society workers took possession of the serpent, which was hungry and thirsty. Balcha thinks it was lost by someone living in his apartment building and had slithered through a heating vent.

Worried scientist calls for halt to all radio and TV signals

By IRWIN FISHER

An astronomer is seeking a ban on all radio and television transmissions to keep from arousing the interest of a space "thing" that could kill us all!

"It's time to be quiet," Dr. Vald Sorensen told a gathering of scientists and reporters in Nakskov, Denmark.

"There's something prowling around out there and we shouldn't attract its attention with radio and TV signals that travel at the speed of light through space.

"Animal? Monster? A fleet of intergalactic battle cruisers? I don't know what it is. I do know that it's huge — and we'd be fools to consider it anything but deadly."

The astronomer's grim warning met with mixed reviews at the Nakskov conference.

Radio astronomer Tage Olsen acknowledged that "an unusually large mass" is traveling toward our solar system at a speed that would place it here early next September.

But he called it "paranoia" to consider the thing deadly until it arrives and shows some malicious intent.

In spite of Olsen's criticism, Dr. Sorensen said he will send letters to the governments of every nation on Earth asking for a ban on all but the most vital radio and TV transmissions for the month of September.

"If we render our planet acoustically invisible while the mysterious mass is in our vicinity we might be able to avoid a confrontation," he said.

"The mass is unlike anything we have ever encountered," he continued. "It is literally pulsing with thermonuclear and electromagnetic energy.

"And it's at least twice the size of Earth, which means it has enough mass to knock us out of orbit with a single brush. That, of course, would spell doom for mankind."

American and Soviet space officials would neither confirm nor deny reports that they are closely monitoring the mysterious space mass. They also refused to comment on the Danish astronomer's address.

"The superpowers are cautious. They don't want to cause a global panic," said Dr. Sorensen.

"That's why I have spoken out to take the responsibilty off their backs.

"But now the word is out. And the ball is in their court."

Critic Olsen countered: "I respect Dr. Sorensen's opinions but I still think he's overreacting.

"We should be trying to understand extraterrestrial phenomena — not hide from it."

Something huge and deadly is out in space — and it is stalking us, says Europe's top astronomer

Boy kills alligator with tennis racket

A 12-year-old Michigan boy armed with a tennis racket killed an alligator after it climbed into his dog's kennel and attacked the family's Doberman pinscher.

"It freaked me out," said Ben Clifton of Midland, Mich. "It was so strong.

"I hit the monster in the head 15, 20 times and it still wasn't dead."

Ben said he was watching a Godzilla movie on TV when he heard Fawn, the family dog, barking and growling outside.

He went out to investigate and discovered a three-foot alligator in the dog's kennel fighting with the Doberman.

The boy ran back in the house, grabbed a tennis racket and went to the dog's rescue.

Stumped authorities were trying to figure out how the Florida alligator wound up in Michigan.

Pizza pig out lands man in jail

. . . he was broke!

Fatso Stephen Aldridge gobbled up five king-size pizzas, washed them down with five mugs of beer — then told the pizzeria waitress he didn't have a penny.

"I'm broke, call the police," overstuffed Stephen, 28, told the waitress.

And that's just what she did.

The jobless London, England, man told cops he pulled the stunt because he was hungry and "dying for a beer."

His bill came to about $80, but the court, then got a one-day sentence after pleading guilty to deception.

Blind man attacks van

Blind Martin Schultz didn't take it lying down when he was hit by a van. In fact, he stumbled to his feet — and smashed the windshield with his white cane!

Cops in Dubuque, Iowa, charged 64-year-old motorist George Henson with failure to exercise caution when approaching a blind person and with violating his restricted license.

Hansen's van was moving slowly and 35-year-old Schultz wasn't seriously hurt.

Frisky police dog puts bite on cop

By DEREK CLONTZ

A police dog got over-excited during a disturbance and bit his master in the groin!

Patrolman Glyn Kettleborough squealed in agony but finally caught his breath and ordered the powerful German shepherd to loosen its vise-like grip.

"I understand the officer was in a great deal of pain," said a spokesman for the hospital where Kettleborough was treated for the wound.

"He had been bitten in a very delicate area, indeed."

A spokesman for the police department in Milton Keynes, England, added:

"It seems the dog got a bit over-excited while dealing with gate-crashers at a party in a house.

"But for poor Glyn, it was almost the big snip."

OWN A HOARD OF THE MOST COLLECTED U.S. COINS IN HISTORY.

The U.S. No longer mints copper pennies like these

An Armored Car Load of Vanishing Copper Lincoln "Wheat" Cents Offers You This Exciting Opportunity

Recently, we received an offer we couldn't refuse—a chance to purchase an entire armored car load of Lincoln "Wheat" Cents.

Now people who don't know coins won't understand all this excitement about pennies—even a whole truckload of pennies. But anyone who does know coins will realize immediately what an opportunity this was.

No Longer Minted

First off, these were not ordinary, present day pennies with only a thin film of copper on a zinc base. The whole truckload are 95% pure copper except for a few really unusual finds—scarce 1943 steel cents from World War II. Many of these coins dated back to the early 1900's. None was minted later than 1959 when this design was discontinued.

You don't have to be an expert to know that you won't find solid copper pennies like these in your pocket today. Copper is just too valuable to be used in pennies any more. There were millions of these copper "Wheats" minted through the years. But today it's hard to find even a few in circulation.

While our supplies last, we are making available this armored car load of Lincoln "Wheats" in either bags of 2,000 for $129 or full coin bags of 5,000 for only $259, save $63.50.

FEDERAL COIN FUND'S UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE—
All sealed bags of Lincoln "Wheats" are unconditionally guaranteed to contain only genuine United States Mint "Wheat" pennies minted from 1910 to 1959. Each 5000 coin bag is guaranteed to contain 34.5 lbs. of Copper Cents. The Federal Coin Fund, a private numismatic group led by a Life Member of the American Numismatic Association, unconditionally guarantees your satisfaction. If you are not pleased for any reason, you may return your order as received within 10 days for full refund.

A Single Coin in Your Bag Could Be Worth More Than The Full Bag Cost!

But that's only part of the excitement. Here's the rest:

You can have a real treasure hunt going through your personal hoard of these old coins. And there is no telling what treasures you may find. They're all sealed in mint style bags, unsorted and just as received. So you could well find a single penny that's worth more than the price of the entire bag.

Two Free Bonuses!

With your coins, you'll also receive two free bonus gifts to make your treasure hunting easier—and more rewarding. One is a free collector's "Green Page" with the latest market values for copper "Wheats" by year, condition and mint. The other is a free Copper Wheat Collector's Album with a space for each year and mint.

However, you must act promptly to cash in on this extraordinary opportunity. Once the last bag of copper "Wheats" from this armored car load is gone, the offer will end.

FIFTY KILLER WHALES PULVERIZED MY BOAT . . . and I was next!

Solo sailor stalked by sea's most savage beasts

By DICK DONOVAN

Ocean racer David Sellings lived through the most chilling nightmare a sailor could imagine when his sloop was smashed to bits — by a crazed pack of killer whales hell-bent on eating him alive!

But for some unexplainable reason, when Sellings was in the water struggling desperately to get into his rubber life raft, the awesome killers that had stalked him relentlessly for three days suddenly vanished into the depths.

"It was the most frightening thing I've ever seen," the daring 41-year-old bachelor said after his chance rescue by a German freighter. "I thought my life was over.

"But as soon as I scrambled into my life raft, the whales suddenly went quiet and swam away. The silence was really eerie."

Sellings' harrowing brush with death came eight days after he and dozens of other intrepid solo sailors had set out from Plymouth, England, on a single-handed, transatlantic race to Newport, R.I.

"On the fifth night out, I saw several whales in the distance," Sellings said. "The next night, I heard them under the boat. They were squealing like pigs and acting like hooligans.

"They went away but came back in the morning. This time there were a lot more of them — maybe 50 or 60. The biggest was about 30 feet long.

"The next day they came back. They were making a hell of a lot of noise and kept getting closer and closer.

"The waiting was the worst part of it. I knew they wanted to kill me, but I have no idea why. All I could do was sit there in the ocean, on a 29-foot boat 1,000 miles from land, and wait for the inevitable.

"Then, one of the whales smashed my rudder and I quickly sent out a Mayday on my radio. I went below to gather my personal possessions and suddenly the whole boat heaved and shuddered.

"I heard the most almighty crunching blows at the bow of the boat. It was split in two and water was rushing in. I only had seconds to throw the life raft overboard and jump before my boat went down.

"I managed to scramble into the life raft and the minute I did, everything got deadly quiet. For some reason, those monsters had left."

Luckily, Sellings' Mayday call was picked up by the German freighter Bridgewater, the only vessel that heard his distress call. But it still took an RAF search plane to pinpoint the castaway's position.

"He's a lucky man," the Bridgewater's skipper, Peter Fricke, said.

"We searched for him for hours. It was only

SAVED! David Sellings survived an attack by a pack of killer whales.

Punks steal horses' tails

By SUSAN JIMISON

Horse owner Lloyd L. Wilson called police to complain of theft after punks tied up his geldings in a pasture — and stole their tails.

The Kansas City man says the horses' fly-swatters were taken in two separate incidents and he's hopping mad about it.

"They're having a heck of a time," he said.

"Now is when those horses need their tails the most. Having tails gives them a fighting chance with the flies.

"One of them's got blood spots on its legs already from fly bites. And the tail will take eight to nine months to grow back."

Wilson thinks it took several people to hold his horses while the tails were trimmed.

"And it took a really good pair of scissors to cut all that hair off so neatly," said Wilson.

Police theorize that someone is using the horsehair to make homespun trinkets like braided knife handles.

Good Samaritan swipes cop car!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A would-be hero tried to rescue a woman from the clutches of the law by swiping a police cruiser and driving her from the scene of an accident.

The unidentified man stood by as Denver cops gave the woman a sobriety test and then put her in the cruiser for a trip to jail. Another cruiser already had taken a man to the police station as possible drunk driver after his pickup had rammed the woman's car.

While getting information about the accident, Officer Marc Meyers smelled booze on the woman's breath.

"I was sitting in the front seat of the police car when some guy came up from nowhere, jumped in the car and started driving away," she said.

Officer Meyers was about 10 feet from the unlocked patrol car at the time. The stranger drove about four blocks, stopped the cruiser and said, "You never seen me."

"And I said, 'Okay, I didn't.' Then he ran one way and I ran the other," she said.

The woman ran back to the scene while police looked for the stolen cruiser. They found it in less than five minutes.

Later, the unidentified man called a Denver newspaper and said he stole the cruiser because he didn't think the woman was getting a fair shake.

"It didn't look like she was drunk," he said. "I was just frustrated with the way the police handled it."

Woman charged with raping another woman

Bizarre case is a shocker!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A rare rape charge was filed by cops after a woman said she was overpowered, dragged into a bedroom and sexually assaulted — by another woman.

Carla Strong, 26, will face trial on rape and aggravated assault charges after a judge in Kansas City heard testimony from the 28-year-old victim.

The woman testified she returned to her apartment one early morning and found Miss Strong there. She had never met the suspect but recognized her as the sister of a neighbor. They chatted for a while and had a drink until Miss Strong tried to kiss her, the victim testified.

Pushing the suspect away, the victim said, "I'm not like that. I think you'd better go," according to court testimony.

Instead of leaving, Miss Strong punched her in the face, dragged her by the hair into a bedroom and broke a glass jar on her head, the petite woman told the court.

Holding a jagged edge of the glass to the terrified victim's throat, Miss Strong forced her to perform various sexual acts, she testified. After the horrifying ordeal, Miss Strong threatened to kill her and her children if she told anyone what happened, according to testimony.

Reported rapes of women by other women are rare, according to experts.

GIANT HOROSCOPE

By Countess Sophia Sabak

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Signs indicate this may be the ideal time to reevaluate your commitment to the pursuit of an elusive goal. Consider devoting more effort to achievable objectives.

Your typical Aries generosity could lead to trouble when someone you trust tries to take advantage. Examine the situation objectively and rely on your common sense to do the right thing.

Don't be afraid to seize an unusual opportunity that may be coming your way in the week ahead.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

A creative urge could bring about some important changes in your life if you have the courage to follow your instincts instead of the crowd. Trust your own intuition and you may be pleasantly surprised.

Don't let your strong Taurus sense of loyalty get in the way of your better judgment in the event that you are misled by a friend. Strive to be more objective about those around you.

Try to be flexible if roadblocks suddenly appear in your path.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

You've made a heroic effort to mask the pain that's been tugging at your heart these past few weeks. But there are those who know of your suffering and they now see you in a different light. Everything will soon be OK again.

Be wary of silly know-nothings that offer unwanted advice. Use your Gemini charm to put them off.

Set your sights on a well-deserved weekend of personal enjoyment, even if it means leaving some loose ends untied.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

Making the best of a rotten situation is what sets you head and shoulders above the crowd. But your Cancerian tenacity may soon be tested to the limit if you don't use your psychic gift to avert a looming problem.

Be prepared for some events that will leave you tickled pink. They appear headed your way — at long last!

Give your spirits a lift by rekindling relationships with neglected loved ones. It will make your week.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

An opportunity for advancement or financial success looms in the very near future. Remember every change has its bad side. Weigh the good points against the bad before making a final decision.

Bright Leo shines by settling a baffling problem. Don't let the praise and pats on the back go to your head as they sometimes do. We all know you're clever, but you shouldn't have to hear it constantly.

Seafood could prove hazardous this weekend.

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Attractive and self-assured Virgos can't help but draw the attention of the opposite sex. Don't be flustered. Enjoy the flattering looks and go about your business.

Your sharp, careful eyes spot a mistake that could cost someone dearly. The pat on the back you get for your alertness is well deserved.

The idea that a color can be lucky is nothing to sneer at. Red can bring good fortune this weekend. Red shoes for Virgo gals and red socks for guys are in line.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Listen up, Libra. Something said in jest this week could provide the clue to a brighter financial future for you and those you love. Your creative instincts are especially sharp now, so you should be prepared to make the best of the opportunity. Don't let this one pass you by.

Someone you've helped in the past stands ready to aid you now. Don't be afraid to ask.

A lonely friend would love to hear from you.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Ssshh, Scorpio. This is a good week to keep your mouth shut and let others do the talking. The way things are shaping up, a quick tongue will do nothing but get you in trouble. The more others jabber on, the wiser you'll appear to those who appreciate your silence.

A back-slapping pal may be trying to lead you down the garden path. Watch where you step.

Take care of any nagging health problems now. Delay will only cause more pain.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You may be dealing with difficult people this week but you can handle it. Your Sagittarian ability to keep your temper should help you stay cool through trying times.

Friends may contact you with personal problems. They have learned to trust your advice, so give it — but don't overextend yourself. You have enough on your plate already.

You could use some down time. Why not take a vacation or plan a special outing? Get plenty of rest and nourishing food.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Ignore rumors this week, Capricorn. They might lead you to the wrong conclusions. Trust your own instincts in making decisions.

A small gesture from a friend may brighten your spirits. Pay attention to young people who depend on you for advice and support. The next few days will bring opportunities to help them out.

Annoying co-workers may leave you short-tempered. Relax at home so you can exercise patience at work this week.

If your birthday is this week . . .

The year ahead promises to be one of constant change and good fortune. To achieve maximum benefit you'll have to be flexible. There will be many opportunities — but they'll only knock once.

Things are definitely looking up for you in the romance department. The opposite sex finds you exceptionally attractive this summer. If married, be careful. Otherwise, make the most of your magnetism now!

A family member may soon disappoint you but good friends will take up the slack. This is an excellent year for self-improvement.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You are too easy-going and laid back for your own good. That's an admirable trait if you don't mind getting walked on. Speak up, stupid.

There's a good possibility you may get a change of scenery in the near future. Don't ignore an opportunity that could change your present job and/or life-style.

Be alert this week and don't take anything for granted. A fast-talking friend or stranger may try to catch you off guard. Don't let it happen or you'll be sorry.

PISCES

Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Someone you like and respect may disappoint you this week with an act that is totally out of character. Keep your characteristic Piscean cool until you know all the facts.

Be receptive to new ideas and suggestions. Keep an open mind where opportunities are concerned. Your future may depend on it.

An old school chum may cross your path this week. But be aware that people change through the years.

BAD BLOOD

Feuding docs slug it out during operation

By JACK ALEXANDER

Two hot-tempered doctors duked it out while performing surgery and didn't stop fighting until one bit off the other's thumb.

Stunned nurses watched in disbelief as Dr. Indu Dhar dropped his scalpel and slugged Dr. Sudhir Khanna at the Post-Graduate Medical Institute in Chandigarh, India. After punching Khanna in the face and stomach, Dhar grabbed his battered colleague's right hand and chomped off the thumb, according to the Chandigarh Tribune.

"He spat out the thumb, scrubbed up again and returned to the patient, who was lying on the operating table waiting to be sutured," said nurse Kalipada Banswai.

Dr. Khanna and his thumb were rushed to another operating room where plastic surgeons re-attached his thumb.

"There has been bad blood between them for months, but I thought they were professional enough not to let it carry over into the operating room," said a spokesman.

The patient reportedly was in good condition after surgery.

Bone marrow transplant gives new life to leukemia victim

PRETTY teenage leukemia victim Samantha Armitage got a lifesaving bone marrow transplant from her mystery sister.

MYSTERY SISTER SAVES DYING TEEN

By SUSAN JIMISON

Leukemia victim Samantha Armitage has a terrific chance of surviving her disease — thanks to a mystery sister she never knew she had.

The pretty would-be actress, 19, is getting a bone marrow transplant after her adoptive mom turned detective and started a search for Samantha's birth family.

It turned out that Samantha's real mom and dad went on to marry and have six more kids, and one of their daughters was a perfect match for dying Samantha.

A few weeks ago Samantha met her sister — 5-year-old Fiona — for the first time and the child and her parents agreed to help.

"It was a very emotional meeting," Samantha recalled. "She is a lovely little girl and I will always be grateful to her."

Samantha was given up for adoption by her unwed mother when she was just 6 weeks old.

She was raised by Dalton, England, dance school owner Audrey Armitage, a divorcee, and had no idea that her natural mom and dad eventually married and had more children.

She was stricken by deadly leukemia.

She underwent months of chemotherapy after which her blood cancer went into remission.

But doctors have warned her that without a bone marrow transplant, the disease could come back and kill her any time.

That worry was enough to start Audrey Armitage on a search for Samantha's natural mother in the hope she might have borne more children who might be able to help with a transplant.

With the help of adoption officials, she traced the woman, and when doctors tested Samantha's biological family, they found Fiona was a perfect match.

Now there's a good chance Samantha will live a long and healthy life.

"I'm determined to become a star and the doctors say I will be healthy enough to continue my stage career in four or five months," said Samantha, who has been acting, singing and dancing since she was

Expert tells how to handle a difficult mother-in-law

You can handle a difficult mother-in-law with tips from a leading expert.

First you have to determine what kind of mother-in-law you have. According to Dr. Matti Gershenfeld, there are at least eight types.

The Temple University expert identifies those types and tells you how to deal with them below:

● The Martyr: She never stops talking about the sacrifices she made so that her child could have the best of everything. Advice: Don't take any notice. She probably didn't do more than any other mother!

● The Troublemaker: She creates problems so she can sit back and watch the fight. Advice: Ignore her.

● The Hypochondriac: She always moans about her aches and pains. Advice: Phone and visit frequently — but keep chats short.

● The Critic: She's always trying to show that she's the world's greatest cook and homemaker. Advice: Don't try to compete and she'll give up!

● The Plotter: She plays one relative off another, often by comparing the presents she gets. Advice: Tell her you're not interested in buying affection.

● The Interferer: She doesn't think you're good enough for her son or daughter and says so. Advice: Tell your partner to tell her to shut up!

● The Sponger: She always asks you to run errands and do favors for her. Advice: Be blunt. If you can't spare the time, tell her so!

● Last but not least, there's the mother-in-law who tells you to separate every time you and your spouse get into a fight. Dr. Gershenfeld says: "Never ask for her advice. And tell your partner never to discuss marital problems with outsiders."

Slippery fugitive outwits the FBI in 10-year hunt!

Card shark wanted for murder and racketeering

By DICK DONOVAN

After 10 years on the FBI's Most Wanted list, accused murderer, extortionist, racketeer and card shark Leo Joseph Koury has reached a new level of infamy — he's the most elusive fugitive in American history!

Since he dropped out of sight in 1978 — some say with a bankroll of more than $1 million in cash — his trail has criss-crossed the nation and reached into South America and the Middle East.

And even Jack Colwell, the latest FBI agent assigned to hunt him down, admits that Leo Koury is winning his fox-and-hounds game with the law.

"This case is frustrating. It's disappointing. It's embarrassing," the straight-talking, veteran lawman said. Then, with a wide grin cracking his face, he adds, "It's also challenging.

"I love this case. Leo is hard. He's old. He knows every trick in the book. That makes us even."

It was back in the early 1970s that Koury opened some of the first nightclubs in Richmond, Va., that catered to homosexuals, charging top dollar for giving gays a place to cruise.

In November 1978, the state claimed that Koury eliminated his competitors with bullets and indicted him for two murders and three attempted contract hits on the operators of rival gay clubs.

A week earlier, Koury was ACCUSED killer Leo Koury.

indicted on federal racketeering charges of loan-sharking, insurance fraud and planning a failed 1975 attempt to snatch the president of a Richmond-based pharmaceutical company.

But Koury, who had well-placed friends in law enforcement, apparently got word he was about to be jailed. The day before he was indicted, he dropped out of sight.

Koury, now 54, has been on the lam ever since. He now has the dubious honor of being the longest active fugitive on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list.

In the decade since Koury vanished, about a dozen FBI agents have been assigned to track him down.

Now that assignment belongs to Colwell, a balding, 40-year-old, 15-year veteran federal agent who has undergone cancer operations on his throat and lungs.

But Carroll Loehr, a one-time cohort of Koury's, doesn't think Colwell has a chance of nabbing the elusive fugitive.

"Colwell isn't smart enough to catch Leo," he once claimed. "None of them are."

"So far, he's right," Colwell conceded. "Leo is winning.

"I think Leo's having a good time. It's all a game to him. The chase may be enjoyable for him for a time. But at some point he has to tire of it."

FBI Agent Virgil Young Jr. sits amid 38 volumes of files on Leo Joseph Koury, who has eluded cops 10 years.

Brotherly love leads to suicide

The body of a man haunted by his brother's suicide was found floating in the shallow water of a quarry where his brother killed himself 16 years earlier.

Authorities in Lynn, Mass., said 28-year-old Edward Kester took his own life at the quarry where his brother, Paul, committed suicide in 1972 at the age of 16.

PSYCHIC WARNS POLICE OF

OVERCOME WITH EMOTION: John Newman begins to sob as he gives testimony against his nephew Kirby Anthoney. Newman lost his wife and children in the bloody spree.

By DICK DONOVAN

A psychic warned cops that three people were earmarked for death by a satanic cult — just one day before a mother and her two little girls were found brutally murdered in their home!

That grisly warning, from a woman referred to only as J.S., was revealed in sworn testimony that stunned a packed courtroom in Anchorage, Alaska, where the most shocking murder trial in recent memory was being played out in all its gory detail.

On trial was 24-year-old Kirby Anthoney, who was ultimately convicted of three counts of murder, two counts of rape and one count of kidnapping.

His savaged victims were his 33-year-old aunt, Nancy Newman, and her two daughters, Milissa, 8, and Angela, 3. "The mother and Milissa

Man hides lit firecracker between his legs

By JACK ALEXANDER

A 40-year-old man was hospitalized after the lit firecracker he hid between his legs exploded in a hellish wash of flame, say cops.

Augustine Grandos, of Sacramento, Calif., severely injured his genitals — but his nightmare was only beginning.

Yolo County Sheriff's Sgt. Lee Resfland said the powerful "flaming ball" brand firecracker ignited a cache of fireworks on the car seat beside Grandos — setting fire to him and two pals!

"In an emergency to conceal the firecracker from a deputy, Grandos stuck it between his legs rather than throw it out the car window," said the cop.

Official reports noted that Richard Alfaro, 34, Hijinio Santillano, 38, and Grandos had been tossing firecrackers out the window while riding in a car near Clarkburg, Calif.

In fact, Grandos had just lit a firecracker when he saw a police cruiser approaching, panicked and jammed the explosive between his legs, Sgt. Resfland said.

The firecracker exploded.

Within seconds, the entire car was in flames.

Grandos was hospitalized at University Medical Center in Sacramento with second- and third-degree burns over 86 percent of his body, said the cop.

Santillano suffered second-degree burns over 23 percent of his body. Alfaro was burned over 10 percent of his body. Both were said to be in fair condition.

Sheriff's deputies charged the three men with the transportation and possession of illegal fireworks and arson, Sgt. Resfland said.

"You warn your children about the dangers of fireworks," he continued, "but you'd think grown men would have enough sense to be careful. That stuff is

SKIN CANCER BREAKTHROUGH

An astonishing new procedure has dramatically increased survival rates of patients with metastatic melanoma — a deadly form of skin cancer!

Dr. John Stehlin, of Houston's St. Joseph Hospital, said the treatment involves draining a patient's blood, heating it and returning it to the body with the anti-cancer drug melphalan.

FAMILY'S MASSACRE

were raped while they were dying," Assistant D.A. Bill Ingaldson told The NEWS. "The 3-year-old child had been beaten and slashed so brutally she was almost decapitated."

Anthoney, who now faces up to 456 years in prison, is a beast known for his explosive rage. He is the prime suspect in two earlier crimes — the beating murder of an Anchorage transvestite and the rape of a 12-year-old girl who was beaten and left for dead in Twin Falls, Idaho, where he and the Newmans had once lived.

During Anthoney's trial, Anchorage policeman Mark O'Brien was given court permission to testify to two conversations he had with a woman psychic who couldn't testify herself because she was confined in a mental hospital.

O'Brien said the psychic, identified only as J.S., asked her doctor to notify police that she had had a vision that cult killings would be committed as human sacrifices over the weekend.

The bodies of Nancy Newman and her two girls were found the following day.

In one of the interviews with O'Brien, J.S. described the murder scene — an apartment almost exactly like the gled and the third, the youngest child, would have her throat slit. Both Nancy and Milissa were strangled while the youngest victim, Angela, had her throat slashed so deeply she was almost decapitated.

The psychic, however, said the satanic murders were committed by three men in their 30s.

Because the prosecution did not object to what amounted to O'Brien giving hearsay testimony, the psychic's "vision" was told to the jury.

Despite the psychic's claim that three men, not one, committed the heinous murders, the jury of six men and six women convicted Anthoney on all counts.

He is to be sentenced in August.

Prosecutor Ingaldson told The NEWS he allowed the psychic's wild tale to be presented to the jury because "the jury would see that if the defense was presenting that kind of evidence, then they didn't have much of a defense."
